Heart disease is the leading cause of death for both men and women. To prevent heart disease and increase awareness of its effects, The Kaibab Paiute Tribe is proudly participating in American Heart Month.

You can make healthy changes to lower your risk of developing heart disease. Controlling and preventing risk factors is also important for people who already have heart disease. To lower your risk:

- Watch your weight.
- Quit smoking and stay away from secondhand smoke.
- Control your cholesterol and blood pressure.
- If you drink alcohol, drink only in moderation.
- Get active and eat healthy.

Am I at risk for heart disease?

Everyone is at risk for heart disease. But you are at higher risk for heart disease if you:

- Have high cholesterol or high blood pressure
- Smoke
- Are overweight or obese
- Don’t get enough physical activity
- Don’t eat a healthy diet

Your age and family history also affect your risk for heart disease. Your risk is higher if:

- You are a woman over age 55
- You are a man over age 45
- Your father or brother had heart disease before age 55
- Your mother or sister had heart disease before age 65

But the good news is there’s a lot you can do to prevent heart disease.

Cultural Resource Monitor Training

February 27 & 28, 2020
9:00AM - 3:00PM
Kaibab Community Building

You are required to attend both days to get tribally certified. This means you will be eligible for paid monitoring jobs.

Day 1  Classroom - get familiarized with tribal and federal archaeological laws such as NAGPRA, ARPA, NHPA

Day 2  Outdoor – hands on field class including best practices, cultural site identification and documentation.

As a Cultural Resource Monitor representing the tribe on projects your primary role is to take daily notes and observe the project for any cultural, historical and archaeological resources by working closely with the project archaeologists and their staff as a representative of the Kaibab Paiute Tribe reporting weekly to the Cultural Resources or in their absence the Cultural Preservation department. Cultural Resource Monitors make an important contribution to preserving our cultural heritage.

Producers • Phytoplankton, literally “wandering plants,” are microscopic algae that float in the open water and give it a green appearance. They carry out photosynthesis using carbon dioxide that is dissolved in the water and release oxygen that is used by the bacteria and animals in the pond. Phytoplankton are not actually plants—they are protists!

• Periphytic algae are microscopic algae that attach themselves to substrates and give the rocks and sticks a greenish brown slimy appearance. They also carry out photosynthesis and produce oxygen, often near the bottom of the pond where it can be used by decomposers.

• Submerged plants grow completely under water

• Floating plants include plants that float on the surface and plants that are rooted on the bottom of the pond but have leaves and/or stems that float.

• Emergent plants are rooted in shallow water but their stems and leaves are above water most of the time. • Shore plants grow in wet soil at the edge of the pond. Consumers

• Zooplankton are microscopic animals that eat phytoplankton or smaller zooplankton. Some are single-celled animals, tiny crustaceans, or tiny immature stages of larger animals. Zooplankton float about in the open water portions of the pond and are important food for some animals.

• Invertebrates include all animals without backbones. Macroinvertebrates are big enough to be seen with the naked eye. Some of them are only found in clean water.

• Vertebrates are animals with backbones. In a pond these might include fish, frogs, salamanders, and turtles. Decomposers Animal waste and dead and decaying plants and animals form detritus on the bottom of the pond. Decomposers, also known as detritivores, are bacteria and other organisms that break down detritus into material that can be used by primary producers, thus returning the detritus to the ecosystem. As this material decomposes it can serve as a food resource for microbes and invertebrates. During decay microbes living on detritus can pull nutrients from the overlying water thus acting to improve water quality. In the process of breaking down detritus, decomposers produce water and carbon dioxide.
